ENTER Supporting One2One Teens During Israel-Iran War

At the beginning of the 12-day war with Iran, One2One reached out to current and past participants with the following message:

One2One was founded on the concept that the Jewish people are deeply connected, no matter the distance between us. This is an opportunity to strengthen this sense of togetherness by reaching out to your partners to ask how they are doing, share what you are experiencing and to remind one another that we are not alone.

Many participants have been in contact with their partners and have indicated how moved they have been by the support they received.

“This year, in particular, when our students have and are facing unprecedented challenges, your program offered a rare and meaningful opportunity for dialogue, connection, and mutual understanding... These encounters remind us that empathy and open conversation are more important now than ever.”

Yvonne Alboher, teacher at Tedi Kolek School, Jerusalem

“Looking back on the school year, many students said that One2One was the activity most meaningful to them.”

Orly Raz, teacher at Moshe Arens School, Petach Tivka

Peoplehood Infused Schools

- Last May, ENTER partnered with the Ministry of Education and schools in the U.S. and Israel to organize a social-educational Hackathon focused on Jewish Peoplehood and Shavuot. The students created a Shavuot basket using Jewish values of their choosing. ENTER wrote the formal curriculum for the day, which the Ministry of Education has since adopted to be shared with other cities for future events.
- During Israel's National Memorial Day, Yom Hazikaron, nine schools from ENTER's Peoplehood Infused Schools program learned about stories of Lone Soldiers and their presentations were incorporated into the schools' ceremonies.

ENTER Supporting Peoplehood Infused Schools during Israel-Iran War

- During the outbreak of the Israel-Iran War, ENTER has been connecting communities across the world, inviting those outside of Israel to send messages of solidarity to Israeli elementary schools and faculty. In addition, ENTER has provided the education staff in Israel with content and tools to help them through this difficult period.
- ENTER created an interactive website that teachers can access as an educational tool for remote learning, conveying the messages of support from abroad.
